Prompted by a purchase offer on their valuable commercial property, the church decided to relocate to a new site. We helped them with a master plan for the new property, including a Phase I that relocated the existing building. The tractor used to move the building was actually located inside the structure so it looked like the church was driving down the street at 3 AM. Talk about a “church on the move”.

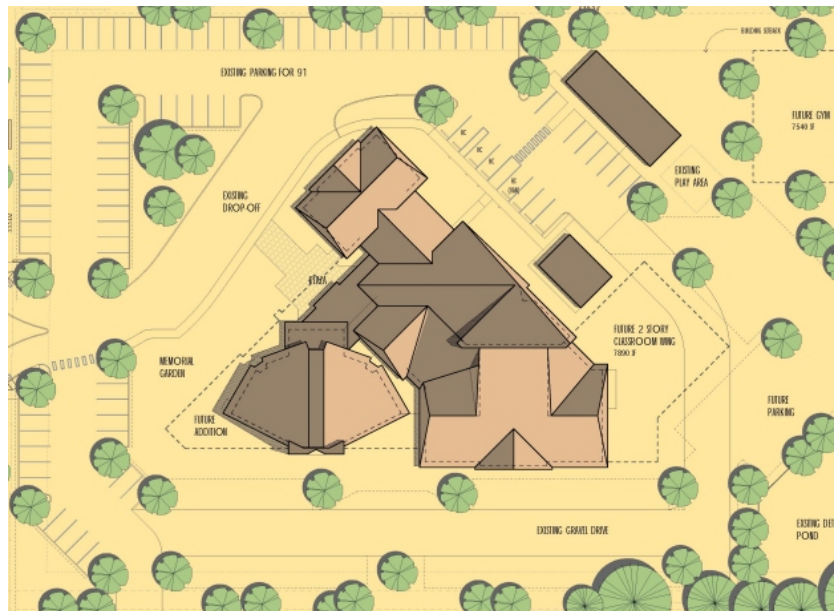

The second phase of the master plan included free-standing 300-seat sanctuary and classroom buildings, resulting in a 3 building campus that can be connected in the future. The design of the buildings was inspired by the original church building by Milton Stricker, an architect strongly influenced by Frank Lloyd Wright.
